RESEARCH

WORKS IN PROGRESS

Seeds: Economic Development and Autocratic Consolidation

I provide evidence on the long-term political effect of autocratic development and propaganda on voting, collective memory, and public opinion employing data on fascist Italy's agrarian development policy and radio roll-out.

Scoops: Access Journalism and Media Crookedness

I propose a model in which an incumbent is able to have the media conceal potential bad news in exchange for access to original publication material: a theoretically neglected type of media capture, consequential and legal in most established democracies.

OTHER PROJECTS

Climate Migration and Political Tensions (with M. Emeriau and S. Wolton)

Early-stage empirical exploration of the effects of Italian migration to France in the late XIX Century.

Bricks: The Long-term Political Impact of Public Housing

Currently digitising fine-grained archival data on INA-Casa, a major public housing project implemented in Italy in the 1950s.

Ghosts: Haunted Houses and Recent Traditions in Urban China

Cuffs: Discriminate Repression and Compliance under Autocracy
